FUND - COMMENTARY

The fund delivered a strong performance in June, with gains driven primarily by the long book. Performance was led by a high-conviction position in a networking and connectivity name that saw a significant re-rating, alongside solid contributions from large-cap names in semiconductors, communications infrastructure, and enterprise software. The portfolio also benefited from strength in sectors like electronic equipment and broader semiconductor exposure. On the other hand, short positions detracted modestly, particularly in large and mega-cap names within interactive media, as well as in underperforming areas like tech hardware, retail, and transportation. Net exposure increased to 36% and gross to 150%, returning to more normalized levels, with beta estimated to account for roughly half of June's gains. The portfolio remains concentrated, with the top five longs comprising over 50% of exposure.
